課程說明	Poetry is generally viewed as the most important literary genre of the Romantic period of Great Britain (1780-1830). The poetical works of this period provide evidence of the scale of this era’s remarkable artistic development. Their impact was universal. This course will provide our students with a general introduction to the major Romantic poets (including Blake, Burns, Wordsworth, Byron and Keats), their works as well as the cul212tural and social background of the period.
學習目標	This course offers our students an opportunity to study the major poetical works of the British Romantic period. Through the course, students will be equipped with knowledge in studying, exploring and enjoying the poetical works of the period. This course will also 1. Enhance students’ critical reading skills 2. Improve students’ English writing ability 3. Develop students’ presentation skills
